AGO

Installation view of Turner Whistler Monet: Impressionist Visions, which debuted at the AGO during the summer of 2004. The exhibition drew more than 210,000 visitors, and continued drawing record crowds at Galeries nationales du Grand Palais in Paris and the Tate Britain.

Highlights

April 1, 2004 – March 31, 2005

April

A retrospective of Rodney Graham's work at the AGO presents 24 works, including seven major audio-visual installations and two new film works. It is organized by the Art Gallery of Ontario, The Museum of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles, and the Vancouver Art Gallery.

The first issue of the Volunteer Vistas newsletter goes out to all active volunteers. The publication is so well received that the Volunteer Executive forges ahead with a new editorial board and an expanded format for subsequent issues.

In response to Toronto Mayor David Miller's Community Cleanup day, the AGO initiates a public cleanup of Grange Park. AGO board members, staff and volunteers, and neighbours pitch in to tidy the park and its surroundings.

The AGO gratefully acknowledges the generosity of the following individuals, corporations and foundations whose contributions assist the Gallery in providing a wide range of quality programs and services to the public. Each year, the AGO raises vital financial support through membership fees, exhibition and program sponsorship, donations for art purchases, special projects and general contributions.

The excitement is palpable. Our ambition for Transformation AGO is clear. An unprecedented chapter in the 105-year history of the AGO is about to begin.

With internationally renowned architect Frank Gehry, we have completed the design phase of our expansion project, confirming a spacious, light-filled and accessible art museum that will become a cultural magnet for Toronto, Ontario and Canada. In reaching this critical juncture, we have strengthened the relationship with our local community through sustained and productive dialogue. Our outreach has extended well into the province as we've asked people to tell us in words and pictures why art matters. Thousands have responded.

Planning for our three-year construction period began in earnest this year, with staff teams focused on every facet of the transformation – from the visitor experience to collection care.

Among our more than 20 superb exhibitions this year, Turner Whistler Monet: Impressionist Visions solidified our presence on the world stage and our role as a generator of new ideas. Conceived by Dr. Katherine Lochan, Senior Curator and the R. Fraser Elliott Curator of Prints and Drawings at the AGO, the exhibition drew more than 210,000 visitors, and continued drawing record crowds at Galeries nationales du Grand Palais in Paris and the Tate Britain.

The accomplishments highlighted in this annual report are but a sample of the efforts of our staff and volunteers, our programming partners and our supporters. All are aligned with our newly created Mission Statement:

We bring art and people together and boldly declare Art Matters.

Our mission is our rationale for Transformation AGO and for all that we do – from our exhibitions to our educational programming, from our retail operations to our building maintenance. It is the reason we come to work each morning and why more than 126,000 hours are donated to the AGO annually by our volunteers. The unprecedented 66,000 members of the AGO tells us that art matters, now more than ever.

As we build toward the unveiling of the transformed AGO in spring 2008, we will continue to offer dynamic and innovative programming. We invite you to remain engaged with your AGO during the next three years. We invite you to witness the transformation-in-progress and the emergence of Toronto's cultural centrepiece.

"Without the voices of artists, our world would remain unchallenged and our understanding of it would suffer. Vital and relevant, the AGO enriches our lives and includes us in an international dialogue. I support Transformation AGO because I believe it will enrich us all."

Ed Burtnysky, Artist

"I support the Art Gallery of Ontario because art represents the essence of human visual imagination. It can be beautiful, provocative, instructive, shocking, entrancing and calming, but always leaves a lasting impression that is intensely personal. Art is the space in my mind that gives me hope for who I am and who we all are."

The AGO Teen Council presents See What an evening showcasing original wearable art and fashion made by youth from across the GTA.

June

Matthew Teitelbaum, director and CEO of the AGO, is appointed President of the Association of Art Museum Directors for a one-year term. The association comprises 168 museum directors from Canada, the United States and Mexico.

Turner, Whistler, Monet: Impressionist Visions, conceived by the AGO, developed in collaboration with Tate Britain, the Réunion des musées nationaux and Musée d'Orsay, opens to rave reviews and draws more than 210,000 visitors to the AGO.

The AGO presents the first solo museum exhibition of Israeli artist Edo Steier as part of the Present Tense series, which includes three video works and three multimedia sculptures that provide a deconstruction of violence, culture and war in the digital age.

Emily Carr (Canadian, 1871–1945), In the Forest, B.C. (detail in opposite page), around 1935, oil on paper, mounted on multiple paperboard, dimensions 48.8 x 30.2 cm. Art Gallery of Ontario, bequest of Professor Kathleen Coburn, 2004.

With more than 800 acquisitions in 2004, the AGO continues to build on the strength of its permanent collection. Among the highlights this year, the Gallery acquired a significant Emily Carr oil on paper, In the Forest, B.C., around 1935. A canonical image of cathedral-like forest interiors, this work captures Carr's vivid investigation of rhythm and movement, so fundamental to these late images. With fluid, broad, languid strokes, she is able to make the forest breathe and to engulf the viewer in its beautiful rhythms.

An important addition to the Contemporary Collection is Crack, a video projection by Toronto artist Louise Noguchi. This acquisition updates the AGO's holdings of this important local artist and augments our representation of current developments in media art.

"In Afghanistan, where I was born, I couldn't go to school, draw or paint freely. The AGO has opened a window for my imagination. Art has become my tool to express my feelings."

Omar Khesrow, Student

Statue of Queen Nana with Child is one of the crowning sculptures of the Frum African collection at the Gallery, one of the most significant donations of African art to a North American museum, and one that distinguishes the AGO as home to one of the most prestigious collections of African tribal sculpture in the world.

The Staircase Landing, rue de Miro-mesnil, is an evocative painting by French artist Édouard Vuillard. It depicts the shadowy interior hallway of Vuillard's family residence, and like the browns and blacks found in 17th century Dutch genre painting, contributes to a mood of brooding mystery.

The AGO's photography collection was greatly enhanced by a number of significant gifts, among them unusual objects that incorporate photographic images. One is a unique metal box that has an American Express receipt to E.G. Redfield, and is accompanied with a tintype, possibly of Redfield himself.

The pen and ink work Kolloseum is the Gallery's first German romantic landscape, a large watercolour by Franz Innocenz Kobell. From 1779 to 1784, Kobell lived in Rome, where he created this imaginative vision around the city's famous Colosseum. Kobell's landscapes earned him wide acclaim, and the southern vistas rendered in his unique style prompted collectors such as Goethe to seek out his work.

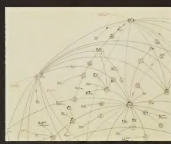

A magnificent addition to the Edward P. Taylor Research Library's collection of the book arts is The Art Journal for 1875. The binding of this volume was designed and executed by Victor Lafrance of Quebec City. It is a richly coloured, fanciful combination of Mauresque and Byzantine styles, heavily decorated with gilt scrollwork on both covers and edges.

For more about our permanent collection, visit www.ago.net.

"Art provides insight into different cultures and times. It can inspire, but more importantly, it frees the imagination for change, choices and creativity. That's what Transformation AGO is all about – our imagination, our creative choices, our times."

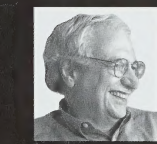

Harold Brathwaite, Educator, Trustee

Sept
The AGO is the beneficiary of the opening-night preview of the Toronto International Art Fair, with $135,000 raised for the Gallery. Over 1,000 collectors and art enthusiasts view and purchase works of art during the evening.

Mark Lombardi: Global Networks explores the work of an artist who transformed his obsession with corruption and fact finding into painstakingly intricate drawings. Works by Toronto artist Jill Crossen-Sargent complement the exhibit.

The AGO and the National Gallery of Canada send 58 works by renowned Canadian artist Tom Thomson to the State Hermitage Museum in St. Petersburg, Russia – the first exhibition devoted to a Canadian artist at the Hermitage.

Transformation AGO architect Frank Gehry visits his former elementary school, Alexander Muir/Gladstone Avenue Public School, to show the students what is possible with effort, creativity, perseverance and a love of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

"It's going to be very exciting. It's all wood and very Canadian." As Toronto-born architect Frank Gehry told the Toronto Star in March 2005, the design vision for Transformation AGO is also very complete, after more than a year as a work in progress. The Los Angeles-based Gehry team worked in close collaboration with the AGO and its community to design a building with remarkable integrity and coherence. Guided by an architect who thinks like an artist, the project went through a number of iterations in its facade, materials, lighting, acoustics and myriad other elements that will mark the transformation when complete in Spring 2008.

The AGO's neighbours were among many vital partners in the design phase, forming a community working group chaired by Toronto City Councillor Olivia Chow. Meeting seven times over the design phase of the project, the group was candid and articulate in its input and helped ensure that the transformed AGO would uphold and enhance its long relationship with the community and Grange Park. Frank Gehry's own commitment to his childhood hometown also contributed to a design that is as sensitive and responsive as it is innovative. The February 2005 unanimous approval of the project by Toronto City Council was a powerful endorsement of both the design and its successful integration with one of Toronto's most historic neighbourhoods.

Highlights of Transformation AGO include: a Dundas streetscape animating the Gallery inside and the city outside; a sculpture promenade extending 450 feet along the north facade; historic Walker Court restored as the heart of the Gallery; a three-level south tower of glass, titanium and Douglas fir overlooking Grange Park, and a dynamic meeting place featuring a free contemporary art space, fine dining, a casual café and gift shop.

"I grew up with galleries and museums and firmly believe they should be available to everyone. Volunteering helps me support that belief and I love inviting people to 'my' Gallery."

Barbara Carson, President, Volunteers, Trustee

"Great art resonates with our own experiences and speaks to the soul. Transformation AGO will bring to us fabulous new collections, a breathtaking Frank Gehry building and new access to the human creative spirit."

Yvonne Chiu, Volunteer, Trustee

A partnership between the AGO and 27 other public art galleries across Ontario is well underway to mount a festival of exhibitions celebrating the 85th anniversary of the first exhibition of the Group of Seven at the AGO.

Six AGO volunteers receive the provincial government's Ontario Service Awards in recognition of their extraordinary volunteer service.

NBA stars Chris Bosh, Matt Bonner and Donyell Marshall promote the value of art and reading to a group of students from Markham's Armadale Public School. As part of the NBA's Read to Achieve program, the Toronto Raptors and the AGO joined forces to host this community outreach.

Membership at the AGO reaches an all-time high of 66,000, following an innovative Do the Math campaign that illustrates the cost-effectiveness of a membership.

Christo and Jeanne-Claude: Works from the Weston Collection opens, presenting 39 of Christo's preparatory drawings collages and photographs of the realized works. A photo portrait collage by Toronto artist Arnaud Maggs welcomes visitors to the show.

New hours of operation and a reduced fee structure are announced for the spring, to remain in effect throughout the AGO's three-year expansion project. A key change is new extended evening hours on Thursdays and Fridays for increased accessibility.

Feb

The AGO and its neighbouring community come together to move Transformation AGO ahead, withdrawing all appeals to the Ontario Municipal Board, and rendering the Toronto City Council's approval (with-out debate) on October 27 as final and binding.

An exhibition by Los Angeles-based artist Kort Newkirk explores how cultural location (and dis-location) intersects with real geography in an installation created exclusively for the AGO.

millions of dollars in new tourism revenues generated by Transformation AGO

We bring art and people together and boldly declare Art Matters.

The AGO confirmed its new mission statement in 2004-05, then put its words into action toward realizing that promise. The December 2004 tsunami tragedy in Southeast Asia prompted worldwide calls for assistance. The AGO was the first cultural organization in the province to marshal its human resources and compassion in support of relief efforts when February 12 gate receipts of more than $13,000 were donated to the Canadian Red Cross. Another $7,000 was raised when more than 30 AGO staff and volunteers joined the Toronto Transit Commission (TTC) for two days of commuter fundraising at six major TTC stations. By the way, the first shift started at 6:45 am!

For the first time in 52 years, the AGO participated in the Canadian National Exhibition (CNE). Staffed by volunteers, the booth reached out to thousands of CNE visitors to share the excitement of Transformation AGO and initiate a dialogue on the role of art in their lives. More than 1,000 visitors used cards and colour markers to tell us why art matters. Among the responses:

"It decorates the world; art is fun, exciting and relaxing; it is a form of self-expression; without it the world would not be fun or beautiful – go paint your sky red; it makes me see things in new and different ways."

The dialogue continued – with window painting by children in our March Break education program, with volunteers and donors appearing in a series of ads in the Toronto Star and Globe and Mail, through the social commentary of Massive Change: The Future of Global Design, and on the international stage with the success of Turner Whistler Monet: Impressionist Visions. Dialogue will remain a focus. Central to our strategic planning is a commitment to sustained dialogue on the role and impact of art, artists and museum practice.

NEW FUTURE

We will become the imaginative centre of our city and province, reflecting our diverse and dynamic setting. We will enhance our international profile as a leading cultural destination and innovative partner in the celebration of art, forging a new model for art museums.

Consistent with our new vision statement, tomorrow's AGO will reflect a new and innovative approach to art museums. Planning continued throughout 2004 and 2005 toward "the art museum revealed" – the creation of new spaces that invite the outside world to enter and provide unparalleled access to art display, conservation, care and storage, creation and research. From the core strength of its permanent collection, the AGO will illustrate, through its exhibitions and educational programming, how works currently not on display are maintained and organized for upcoming exhibitions. The exacting work of conservation will be shown to visitors – as will the varied areas where art is created and studied, and records archived.

Planning teams at the AGO are now exploring other new ideas to create an innovative visitor experience. Emerging information technologies will extend that experience beyond the physical spaces of the Gallery, creating a virtual dimension online. In its newly completed design phase, the transformed AGO heralds new visibility for encounters with art, through visible walkways and the extensive use of glass – connecting the city to the activity inside the Gallery for a new museum experience.

The AGO Youth Council launches Seizure, a new "line of writing, art and commentary by youth across the GTA.

The AGO's end-of-year financial reports indicate that attendance and admissions are at their highest levels since 1998.

The Living Room Project, a public art installation by the AGO's Youth Council, is installed in various locations throughout the city, inspired by Christo and Jeanne-Claude's Gates project in New York's Central Park.

The first-ever collaboration between the Toronto District School Board and the AGO showcases student art at the Gallery. Headlines presents student artwork in response to the AGO's Modigliani: Beyond the Myth exhibition, which drew 126,000 visitors to the Gallery during its 13-week run.

Bruce Mau's Massive Change: The Future of Global Design is launched by a Massive Party, welcoming 1,300 people to the AGO for a night of dancing, cocktails and street-smart food. The event benefits the Gallery's exhibitions and educational programming.
